FRANCE: Information for refugees who are returned to France

Under the Dublin Regulation, refugees may be transferred to the EU country responsible (in most cases, the country of first entry), so that the asylum procedure is carried out there. Refugees who have already been recognised in another EU country will be returned to that country on the basis of the safe third country clause because their asylum application is not admissible in Germany.

For many refugees, their imminent return to another EU country creates great uncertainty. Our guide is intended for advisers, voluntary support groups and people who are affected. It is supposed to show existing services and contacts. Refugees will be given information about their situation after being returned as well as addresses of organisations they may contact locally for support. However, no assessment of these organisations and services is made.

Many services offering help in France are short-term projects and not subsidised on a regular basis. At the time when the information provided herein was compiled (August 2019), there was only a small number of permanent support structures. We therefore do not claim that the list is exhaustive.

Procedure after re-entry into France

Arrival at the airport

Returned persons are received by the border police (Police de l’air et des frontières, PAF). The border police will inform them which Prefecture (administration of a Département) they will be assigned to and issues them with a document (sauf-conduit). With that document, the person concerned must travel to the prefecture named within one week. It may also happen that the border police does not issue any document.

There is no official financial support for travelling to the competent prefecture.

It may also happen that the returned person is ordered to leave the country (obligation de quitter la France, OQTF). When you encounter problems with the police, it is very important to state clearly that you want to apply for asylum. You should only sign something that you have understood and if that document states your intention of applying for asylum.

You may lodge an appeal against the order to leave the country within a period of 15 days.

Persons whose application for asylum was rejected may be brought to a Detention Centre (Centre de rétention administrative, CRA) until they are deported to their country of origin.

No special support is provided to vulnerable persons upon their return.

It may take several weeks to months to look for accommodation; especially single men must expect longer waiting times.

Comments on Paris:

At the Roissy Charles de Gaulle airport, there is an office of the French Red Cross (Permanence d’assistance et d’urgence humanitaire, PAUH). They advise and support persons who have been released from the transit area. Returnees under the Dublin Regulation may go to this office for help.

In the Prefectures in the Paris region, the following situations may arise:

- Asylum applications lodged by returnees under the Dublin Regulation are not registered. The person concerned is referred to the Coordination Office for Asylum Seekers (Structure de premier accueil pour demandeurs d’asile (SPADA) or: Plateformes d’accueil pour demandeurs d’asile, PADA). There are long waiting times before you get an appointment.
- Asylum applications are registered and the person concerned is referred to the French Office for Immigration and Integration (Office Français de l’Immigration et l’Intégration, OFII) in order to find accommodation.

Comments on Lyon:

Returnees are not received and are not issued with any documents by the border police. It is assumed that they go to the Coordination Office for Asylum Seekers (SPADA) on their own.

Comments on Toulouse:

The border police does not issue any documents to the persons arriving but refers them to the Coordination Office for Asylum Seekers (SPADA).
Overland entry

Returned persons are usually received by the border police PAF. The border police will inform them which Prefecture they are assigned to and issue them with a document (saut-conduit). With that document, the person concerned must travel to the Prefecture specified. If the Prefecture is not far away, the person concerned is possibly escorted there.

Persons whose asylum application was rejected are brought to the Detention Centre (Centre de rétention administrative, CRA) until they are deported to their country of origin if no subsequent application is lodged.

What needs to be done first?

That depends on whether the person concerned left France while the asylum procedure was in progress or whether no asylum procedure had yet begun there before leaving France. Depending on the situation, different steps must be taken:

1) The person concerned has not lodged an application for asylum in France so far.

   The person concerned lodges an asylum application immediately after his/her arrival. In so doing, they must follow the regular procedure for asylum applications as described below. Often asylum applications lodged by returnees are classified as an urgent procedure.

2) The person concerned has already lodged an application for asylum in France and left France during the asylum procedure.

   a) A decision in favour of granting the asylum application has been taken:
      Protection was granted. The person concerned has resident status in France.

   b) No decision has yet been taken on the asylum application:
      - The asylum procedure may be closed if the asylum seeker cannot be contacted.
      - Within nine months of closing the procedure, an application to reopen (réouverture) the procedure may be filed. To this end, the person concerned must contact the prefecture again in order to be registered.
      - If an application for reopening is filed after the period of nine months, it is treated as a subsequent application. Subsequent applications are usually handled under an urgent procedure.
      - If the French Asylum Authority (Office Français de Protection des Réfugiés et Apatrides, OFPRA) is not aware that the person concerned has left France, the authority must only be informed of the new address.
c) The asylum application was rejected:
- Rejected asylum seekers have no right of residence in France and can be deported. They may also be detained before deportation.
- Within the period stipulated (usually one month), an appeal may be lodged against the rejection. The appeal must be lodged with the National Court of Asylum (Cour nationale du droit d'asile, CNDA). The applicant has a right of residence in France until the Court takes a decision.
If there are new grounds for asylum or new evidence, a subsequent application for asylum may be lodged.

Residence status in France on the basis of submitted documents
- Refugee status (statut de réfugié): Residence permit (residence card, Carte de résident) for ten years, which may be extended.
  It is possible to apply for a travel document. There is a right to family reunification, i.e. family members from the country of origin join the recognised refugee in France.
- Subsidiary protection (Protection subsidiaire): Residence permit (residence card, Carte de séjour pluriannuelle) for four years. After four years, a 10-year residence permit may be granted on certain conditions.
  It is possible to apply for a travel document. There is a right to family reunification, i.e. family members from the country of origin join the recognised refugee in France.

Procedures under the law of residence / asylum procedures
In principle, the asylum applications lodged by returnees from other EU countries are handled in the same manner as other asylum applications. However, they may also be classified as an urgent procedure. It is possible to lodge an appeal against this decision with the National Court of Asylum (Cour nationale du droit d’asile, CNDA). To this end, the person concerned should contact an NGO to get help.
Due to the multi-level registration system, access to asylum procedures is complex and there are long waiting times before asylum seekers are entitled to support. There is a risk of becoming homeless.
In principle, the procedure described here applies to both initial and subsequent applications. However, shorter periods apply to subsequent applications. Moreover, certain conditions must be met for subsequent applications. In this regard, the person concerned should contact an NGO.

1. The first step (pré-accueil):
In order to lodge an asylum application, first of all the applicant must contact a Coordination Office for Asylum Seekers (Structure de premier accueil pour demandeurs d’asile (SPADA) or Plateformes d’accueil pour demandeurs d’asile, PADA). These offices will make an appointment with the Central Contact Point (Guichet unique) for the asylum seeker.
The coordination offices are managed by the following organisations, among others:
France Terre d’Asile, Forum Refugiés, Coallia, Croix rouge.

Attention: There may be longer waiting times before you get an appointment with the coordination office SPADA. Therefore, it is best to start queuing early in the morning to enhance your chances of being dealt with.

Addresses of SPADA:
http://samsam.guide/carte-des-spada/
http://domasile.info/en/useful-addresses/#pada

Comment on the Paris region (Île-de-France):
Since May 2018, there has been a new procedure in the Île-de-France region; asylum seekers must make an appointment by telephone before going to SPADA. The call should be made from a mobile phone, so that the caller's location can be identified. The following information must be provided: name, date of birth, nationality, date of entering the country. The date of the appointment at the nearest SPADA is then sent by text message.

Telephone number for making appointments with SPADA in Île-de-France:
01 42 500 900 (Monday to Friday, 10 am to 3.30 pm)
The telephone number is operated by the Immigration Office OFII and the service is available in various languages.

Since the telephone lines are often extremely busy, repeated attempts are necessary and there are long waiting times. Moreover, there are costs because the telephone number is not free of charge.

2. Registration with the Central Contact Point (Guichet unique)
Subsequently, the person concerned must register with the Central Contact Point for Asylum Seekers (Guichet unique d’accueil des demandeurs d’asile, GUDA) of the place of residence at the agreed time. They will also organise accommodation. After registration, the person concerned will be given a certificate stating that an asylum application was lodged (Attestation de demande d’asile, ADDA). With this document, the applicant is entitled to stay legally in France. Moreover, it entitles the person concerned to claim certain social welfare benefits. Initially, the certificate is valid for one month; thereafter it may be extended until completion of the asylum procedure.

Officials of the Prefectures and of the French Office for Immigration and Integration (OFII) work at the Central Contact Points. A list of these offices may be viewed here: http://accueil-etrangers.gouv.fr/demande-d-asile-vous-souhaitez-deposer-une-demande/article/lieu-du-depot-de-votre-demande

Map of GUDA: http://samsam.guide/carte-des-guda/
3. Processing of asylum application by the Asylum Authority OFPRA

After registration and receipt of the certificate of asylum application, the completed asylum application must be sent to the Asylum Authority OFPRA within 21 days. In the case of subsequent applications, the application must be submitted within 8 days.

The application should be sent by registered letter to the following address:

OFPRA
201 rue Carnot
94136 Fontenay-sous-Bois Cedex

Subsequently, the person lodging the application will receive an invitation to an interview by OFPRA by post. The interview will take place at the above-mentioned address in Fontenay-sous-Bois. The applicant is entitled to call in an interpreter. Moreover, a legal adviser or representative of an NGO registered with OFPRA may be brought along.

In the course of the normal procedure, OFPRA will then take a decision within six months of lodging the asylum application. The average processing time is three months. The six-month period may be extended by 15 months at the most (to 21 months in total).

If the asylum procedure was classified as an urgent procedure, OFPRA will take a decision on the application within 15 days.

4. The decision

In the case of a decision in favour of the asylum application, either refugee status or subsidiary protection is granted by the Asylum Authority OFPRA.

If the asylum application is rejected, an appeal may be lodged with the National Court of Asylum (Cour nationale du droit d’asile, CNDA). Legal advice should be taken for such an appeal. The applicant is entitled to free legal advice.

If no appeal is lodged, the right of residence in France will end one month after rejection of the asylum application.

A detailed description of the individual steps of the asylum procedure can be found on the information portal for asylum seekers, Dom’Asile (in Arabic, Bengali, English, French, Urdu): http://domasile.info

The person concerned should seek advice from an NGO in order to prepare the asylum application.

What duties do asylum seekers have in France?

Asylum seekers are obliged:

- to remain in France until a decision on the asylum application is taken;
- not to leave the region assigned by the Immigration Authority OFII;
- to cooperate with the French authorities and keep appointments;
- to inform the Asylum Authority OFPRA of any changes of address or other important changes.

What rights do asylum seekers have in France?

As soon as an asylum application is lodged, the applicant has the right:

- to remain in France until a decision on the asylum application is taken;
- to receive financial support (allocation pour demandeur d’asile ADA);
- to schooling for children between 6 and 16 years of age;
- to access to health care (couverture maladie universelle);
- to accommodation.

In the event of any discrimination or infringement of rights, an advisory centre of an NGO should be contacted; see addresses in the annex.

Return to the country of origin

Rejected applicants for asylum may claim the return and reintegration grant of the French Office for Immigration and Integration (OFII). They will be ordered to leave France (obligation de quitter le territoire français, OQTF). This order will specify the period during which one can leave the country voluntarily, usually within one month.

Further information, advice and support can be obtained from the Office for Immigration and Integration (OFII). The address of the nearest office can be checked here: www.retourvolontaire.fr/contact

Further information on voluntary return: www.retourvolontaire.fr/

Brief info in 18 languages: http://voluntaryreturn.fr

Residence certificate

It is necessary to be resident in France in order to claim social welfare benefits or, for example, to open a bank account. Moreover, the residence serves as a postal address for notifications regarding the asylum procedure.

Asylum seekers who are accommodated in reception centres will receive a residence certificate (attestation de domiciliation) there.

Homeless persons can obtain a postal address from certain organisations to enable them to receive post and apply to the authorities for benefits. Organisations offering this service are called "Centres communaux d’action sociale" (CCAS) and "Centres intercommunaux d’action sociale" (CIAS). A list of such organisations is available from the town council.

Accommodation after re-entry

No special accommodation is provided for returnees under the Dublin Regulation. They are treated in the same manner as other asylum seekers in France.

As soon as the refugee has been registered by the Central Contact Point and has received the certificate of asylum application (attestation de demande d’asile), the applicant and his/her immediate family members are entitled to accommodation in a reception centre for asylum seekers (Centre d’accueil pour demandeurs d’asile, CADA).

The Immigration Office OFII assigns the person(s) concerned to a reception centre. In so doing, the family situation or the needs of vulnerable persons are to be taken into account, depending on availability. When registering as an asylum seeker, an offer for accommodation is made, which must be signed. If the person concerned refuses to accept the accommodation offered, he/she loses the right to financial support (allocation pour demandeur d’asile, ADA) and to a different kind of accommodation.

However, there are not enough places to accommodate all asylum seekers. They may have to expect waiting times of several months.

During the waiting time, asylum seekers may be placed in a homeless shelter. However, this is only possible for one or just a few night(s) and the number of places is limited. Information about night shelters can be obtained by calling the emergency telephone number "115".

Since the number of available places in shelters is not sufficient, there is a risk of becoming homeless. Therefore, especially single men often sleep in the open or in tent camps.

Even if no accommodation is provided, asylum seekers are obliged to stay in the region assigned by the Immigration Office OFII. Otherwise they may lose their entitlement to benefits forever. This can also happen when appointments with the Immigration Office are not kept. Therefore, it is possible that returnees under the Dublin Regulation are denied support and accommodation if they had already been assigned accommodation before leaving France or if they failed to keep appointments because they were absent. In that case, they should ask an NGO for support.

Further information on accommodation can be obtained from the Coordination Office for Asylum Seekers (Structure de premier accueil pour demandeurs d’asile (SPADA)).

If an asylum application has already been rejected in France and a subsequent application has been lodged, as a rule the applicant does not have a right to accommodation any more. If an asylum procedure is reopened, the state does not offer any accommodation, either. However, the state is obliged to continue providing accommodation for vulnerable persons. Consequently, the Immigration Office OFII should be informed if there are factors such as disability, severe illness, old age or if someone is a victim of human trafficking or violence.

Access to housing

After a decision in favour of the asylum application has been taken, beneficiaries of protection may stay in the reception centre (CADA) for another three months. This period may be extended by another three months.

The reception centres assist in the search for housing. Beneficiaries of protection may also be assigned to a temporary facility (Centre provisoires d’hébergement, CPH), where they may stay for nine months. An extension by another 3 months is possible. These centres also offer integration measures.

Anyone with a low income may file an application for social housing. To this end, the form "CERFA No. 14069 * 02" must be completed and submitted to the competent local authority.
Homeless persons can obtain a postal address from certain organisations to enable them to receive post and apply to the authorities for benefits. Organisations offering this service are called “Centres communaux d’action sociale” (CCAS) and “Centres intercommunaux d’action sociale” (CIAS). A list of such organisations is available from town councils.

Integration agreement

Recognised refugees and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection must sign an integration agreement (Contrat d’intégration républicaine, CIR) with the Immigration Office OFII. This agreement stipulates certain measures to promote integration: information about life in France, language instruction, careers guidance, social counselling as well as information on the French state and the French authorities.

Access to health care

During the asylum procedure, asylum seekers have access to the general health insurance (Couverture maladie universelle, CMU). Through this insurance, doctor’s fees and hospital expenses are covered also for spouses and children.

Health insurance with CMU is possible after registration of the asylum application. The asylum seeker registers with the local health authority (Caisse primaire d’assurance maladie, CPAM). To this end, the certificate of asylum application and proof of residence must be presented. The registration must be extended each year.

As long as the asylum seeker is not registered, he/she can get free treatment at the following institutions in case of emergency:

- in hospitals with a health centre (Permanence d’accès aux soins de santé, PASS);
- at organisations offering dental, ophthalmological or psychological treatment for non-insured persons;
- from mother and child services (Services de protection maternelle et infantile, PMI), which treat and vaccinate children between the age of 0 and 6 years.

If possible, refugees should take their medical records with them to enable the continuation of ongoing treatments in France.

Recognised refugees and persons who have been granted subsidiary protection are registered permanently with CMU. They will be given an insurance card (carte vitale).

Access to social services

Asylum seekers receive financial support (allocation pour demandeur d’asile, ADA). As soon as the asylum application has been lodged, the asylum seeker may apply for financial support. The application must be submitted to the Central Contact Point for Asylum Seekers (Guichet unique d’accueil des demandeurs d’asile, GUDA), together with the certificate of asylum application or the residence card (Carte de Séjour, RCS) containing the note "a demandé asile" (“has applied for asylum”).
The financial assistance is paid until a decision on the asylum application is taken, i.e. until the end of the month following the decision. The amount of the assistance depends on the composition of the household and the kind of accommodation. For a single adult, it amounts to 6.80 euro per day.

The assistance is only paid if the asylum seeker has accepted the accommodation proposed by the Immigration Office OFII.

It is only paid out when the asylum application has been sent to the Asylum Authority OFPRA. The payment, especially the first instalment, may be subject to longer delays.

Asylum seekers are not entitled to family benefits or social assistance.

Recognised refugees and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection are entitled to receive social welfare benefits and family benefits just like French citizens.

Subject to certain conditions, the social minimum benefit "active solidarity income" (Revenu de solidarité active, RSA) is paid to persons over 25 years of age who are unemployed and have few financial means. It is supposed to secure a minimum income. The amount of the benefit depends on the composition of the household. Persons under the age of 25 who have children will also receive RSA.

Information on minimum benefit, family benefits and housing allowance can be obtained from the local Family Allowance Offices (Caisse d’allocations familiales, CAF) (www.caf.fr).

Access to the labour market

Asylum seekers are not allowed to work straight away. They can only get a work permit 9 months after lodging their asylum application if:

- the Asylum Authority OFPRA has not taken a decision on the asylum application within 9 months (without the asylum seeker being responsible for this delay);
- the asylum seeker has not lodged an appeal with the National Court of Asylum.

However, there is no unrestricted access to the labour market. A work permit is only granted for jobs where there is a labour shortage. When applying for a work permit, a job offer or employment contract must be presented.

Recognised refugees and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection have unrestricted access to the labour market. For them, the same conditions as those for French citizens apply.

Unemployed refugees can register with the French employment office Pôle emploi and will be assisted in their job search.

It is difficult to find work because often language skills are insufficient, qualifications are not recognised or the place of residence is remote.
Access to educational institutions

For children of asylum seekers between the age of 6 and 16, school attendance is compulsory according to French law. Usually, the children are enrolled in regular schools at their place of residence or in large reception centres.

There are special lessons or preparatory classes for children who do not speak French well. However, there are not always enough teacher available.

For adolescents between the age of 16 and 18, school attendance is not compulsory any more. Therefore, it is often difficult for them to be enrolled in a school.

Asylum seekers may attend courses and engage in further training. However, in order to be able to undergo paid professional training, they require a work permit.

Recognised refugees and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection have access to educational measures under the same conditions as French citizens.

Access to language courses/French courses

Asylum seekers who are accommodated in a CADA reception centre can attend French courses offered there.

Moreover, various NGOs, local clubs and initiatives offer French courses.

Recognised refugees and beneficiaries of subsidiary protection are given free language lessons within the framework of the integration agreement (Contrat d’intégration républicaine, CIR) if their knowledge of French does not yet meet the level of the French diploma DILF (Diplôme initial de langue française). At the end of the term of the integration agreement, they will take the DILF examination.

Vulnerable groups

Among the vulnerable persons are minors, unaccompanied minors, pregnant women, disabled persons, older persons, single parents with under-age children, persons who were subject to torture, rape or other forms of severe psychological, physical or sexual violence as well as victims of human trafficking.

Vulnerable persons have a right to special reception conditions. If it has been ascertained that the person concerned is vulnerable, the Immigration Office assigns them to a reception centre that should meet their needs.

Moreover, the Asylum Authority OFPRA can be informed, so that appropriate preparations can be made for the asylum procedure, e.g. disabled access, sign language interpreter for the interview or support by psychologists. In addition, it is possible that the procedure is given priority and carried out earlier.

Problems may occur if the Immigration Authority OFII does not carry out the measures to identify special needs or does not carry them out properly. As a result, it is possible that special needs are not recognised and are therefore not taken into account.
Annex: Where can I get advice and support?

Note: Many services offering help in France are short-term projects and not subsidised on a regular basis. At the time when the information provided herein was compiled (August 2019), there was only a small number of permanent support structures. We therefore do not claim that the list is exhaustive.
